As a Front-End Designer, I was responsible for designing an internal system for the company, ensuring that the screens were visually appealing, functional, and responsive across different devices. During this project, I focused on following good programming practices and ensuring that the code was organized and easy to maintain. To achieve these goals, I used Vue.js technology in conjunction with HTML and CSS, which allowed me to create dynamic and intuitive interfaces for end users. The result was an internal system that met the company's expectations and provided a great user experience

Navas Design   13/02 - 22/03

As a Web Developer, I created responsive websites that provided a great user experience across different devices, using HTML and CSS to build dynamic and aesthetically appealing layouts. To ensure that the development process was efficient and collaborative, I used GitLab to share code among team members and allow for viewing of the sites in development. Additionally, I implemented the sites on different platforms, such as Wordpress and occasionally Hubspot, using their respective content management tools. The result was the delivery of high-quality sites that met the needs of clients and helped boost their online businesses.
